FOOT SALVE,

The Sure Cure for Corns and Infallible Remedy for Bunions, Sore and Inflamed Joints and Chilblains

A great many people may think it strange that [illegible] spending so much money in bringing before the public this article of FOOT SALVE, especially as it is sold at so low a price that it hardly warrants so much advertising. The reason I do this is because I know from experience how much a person suffers from a corn or other disease of the feet, and I think it my duty to make known to the suffering community as much as it is in my power to do the true value of this FOOT SALVE that they may experience the relief that I did from its use some two years ago. I had been suffering at that time for several months from a hard corn, which was so painful at times that it was almost unbearable, when Dr Norman a Chiropodist came to my place of business and offered me the Salve to sell. But I took no stock in it, as I had never heard before of a salve that had been used with perfect success for diseases of the feet only. He induced me to have it applied to my corn as a guarantee of its worth, the first morning after its use I was surprised to find that all the soreness had disappeared, and in a week's time the corn came off itself. Finding with what success it worked in my case, I bought a quantity of the Salve and offered it to my customers, who used it for all the diseases for which it is recommended with like results. I finally bought the right and formula from Dr Norman, and now offer it to the public generally at a price within the reach of all, trusting that by using it as directed that they will experience the great benefit that I did from its use.

Price, 25 Cents a Box.

THE INDIANS.

SHERIDAN'S REPLY TO SCHURZ.

A supplemental report to the annual report of Lieutenant General Sheridan for 1878, with reference to Indian affairs and in response to the request of Secretary Schurz that specifications be furnished in support of the statement made by General Sheridan in his annual report, bears date of Chicago December 22 and is addressed to General W T Sherman, Washington. General Sheridan says the object I had in view in my annual report was to show that the Indian wars came from two causes but that while the first could not be avoided by the government, the second was clearly within its control, and resulted from the bad management of Indian affairs. I made no charges against the honorable Secretary of the Interior, I made no charges against any one; I desired simply to call the attention of my superior officers to the causes that produced discontent and outbreaks, and that from the inadequacy of our military force resulted in the massacre of officers, soldiers and citizens, and horrible and unmentionable barbarities perpetrated on women and children, and to state my belief that these disasters might have been averted by better organization, a more complete system and more integrity in the agents employed. The Secretary of the Interior saw fit to take this up and by disingenuously saying that I had made charges as to corruptions at every agency in the limits of this military division, challenges me for the facts to prove a charge he has himself put into my mouth. His references are not warranted by the language of the report, but in support of what I did say I respectfully submit the data accompanying this supplemental report.

The question of justice and right to the Indian is past and cannot be recalled. We have occupied his country taken away from him his lordly domain, destroyed his herds of game, penned him upon reservations, and reduced him to poverty. For humanity's sake, then let us give him enough to eat and integrity in the agents over him. To show how inconsiderate the honorable Secretary of the Interior was in his first and second letters of November 29 respectively, it is only necessary for me to call the attention of the general of the army to the fact that since 1874 I have carefully retained copies of the Indian reports coming to my office, the briefs of which are herewith enclosed, and it was on this information that my report was made. Surely the honorable Secretary of the Interior cannot impute untruthfulness to the officers making these reports. They were on the ground generally as official inspectors for the Indian bureau, or in some official capacity and are among the best in the service, most of them known to the general of the army and to the country. My object was to call attention to, and, if possible, prevent the calamities occurring to frontier settlers and to reduce the unnecessary expenditures brought upon the United States. The report of Lieutenant Lee giving an exact exposition of the Indian management at Spotted Tail agency, was obtained since the date of my annual report, but the facts as related were well known to me, in fact I was instrumental to some extent in the detection of the McCann fraud. His report is submitted, first for the reason that it gives a fair and comprehensive idea of Indian management and, I believe may be assumed as a fair explanation of what occurred at many of the other agencies, and which produced the hunger and discontent described in the accompanying brief.

I also call attention to the briefs of correspondence from Lieutenant Dougherty relative to the attempt to force upon him, since he has been acting as agent at Crow Creek, employes of bad character, and of the loose and criminal manner in which Indian goods were shipped without bills of lading or invoice. This is true also for Cheyenne and Brule agencies on the Missouri river as well as Crow Creek, whose agent, Dr. Livingston, has recently been indicted on about 124 charges, and as many more that were thrown out under the statute of limitation. The attention of the general of the army is expressly called to reports on the Standing Rock agency, under the management of Agents Burke and Hughes. Then look at the Mandans, Arickarees, Gros Ventres, Assiniboines, Piegans and Crows in Montana Territory. At the latter agency fraud has been rampant, although to the best of my knowledge the agents have been changed at least five or six times in the last seven years. Then come down to the Shoshones, Bannocks, northern and southern Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Kiowas, Camanches, Utes and southern Apaches, and ask them why they have gone to war or been hostile or turbulent for the last six or seven years? The answer will be, insufficiency of food, irregularity in its supply, and broken promises.

General Sheridan, as in his annual report, objects to the removal of the Red Cloud and Spotted Tail Indians farther west, last fall, to worse ground than the Missouri river bottom, where the expense of feeding them would be probably five times greater, and also to their present location on the line of travel to the Black Hills, where contact with the whites is liable to frequently occur.

The present Indian commissioner is doubtless honest, he has discharged a number of agents for malfeasance in office. Commissioner Smith, who preceded him, was an honest man also, as far as I know, and likewise the Commissioner of Indian affairs before him, and so on back. They did as well as they knew how, but I fear that, with all the precautions of honesty, the system and manner of accountability are too loose for the government of a people who cannot read and write, and are so peculiar and primitive in their habits as the Indians. It will be seen, even by the extracts from the reports to the board of Indian commissioners, as well as to the commissioner of Indian affairs they too support me in this conclusion. With all these facts before us, and to the best of my knowledge and belief in possession of the Indian bureau what was the object in challenging the conclusions in my report and giving the letter to the public before it had been sent to the honorable Secretary of War, to whom it was addressed? Surely, the officers who guard the agencies, and are held responsible for the protection of the lives and property of settlers, should have the right to report to their superiors the cause of troubles without the danger of being lectured into silence by the honorable Secretary of the Interior. I did not say that the Indian bureau had anything to do with it, and I utterly disclaim any intention of criticising the action of his excellency the President; he could not well help himself. In my report I only expressed my regret at what had happened. It is not strange when we consider the inadequacy of our military force that I should, in common with officers, call attention to circumstances like this that are liable to involve trouble and disaster.

He submits reports from General Crook confirmatory of his opinions, and says The Indian, armed as he is, and in his own country, is superior to us at any point where we were liable to meet him, and, as he takes no prisoners, it requires a bold man to attack him with an inferior force, in view of the disasters which happened to poor Custer, Fetterman and others.

The Portland Press says Wednesday morning the workmen engaged in laying the foundations of the new stable on Green street prepared a blast with care, and touched it off. Mr C A Waite resides on the upper side of the street, and a son of his was standing in the bay window watching the operation. The ledge in which the blast was drilled was rotten and when the explosion took place a large piece of rock was thrown through Mr. Waite's window, coming so near to the son's head that it struck his hand which was resting on the sash, and crushed the thumb. The rock also did considerable damage in the room. An explosion of a blast in the afternoon, notwithstanding it was carefully covered, sent rocks and boards in a every direction, but fortunately no one was hurt

There have been employed in the jail workshop at Portland the past year in all 263 prisoners male and female. The prisoners have performed 14 426 days labor and have manufactured 403 914 pairs of inner soles, 76 632 pairs of heels 85,881 pairs of taps, 12 411 pairs of counters, and 19-575 sheets of heeling. The average number at work throughout the year was 48, the smallest monthly average being 35 in August, and the largest being 65 in December. The prisoners are generally orderly and well behaved, and strict prison discipline is enforced.

Wednesday night the store of Mr. J E. Davis, in which was the postoffice, at South Freeport, was burned and the entire contents destroyed. The store was closed in the evening, and about half an hour afterwards the fire was discovered. The flames made such rapid headway that nothing was saved. Mr Davis had an insurance of $1 000. The building was owned by Mr Sidney Soule, and was not insured

The Portland Press says A letter from Captain Woodbury of the schooner J P Machecha from Turks Island states that his mate Mr. Lemuel mansfield, fell from the main boom. All efforts to save him were unavailing and he was lost. He is very highly spoken of by his acquaintances. He was a native of Peaks' Island where his parents reside. His brother John was mate of the ill fated Lady Woodbury which sailed from Portland for Savana La Mar about a year since from which no tidings were ever received

The Portland Press says On Tuesday night a new hand in the Eastern Express Company's office, was entrusted with the combination of the safe lock and ordered to close the safe when he left. He did so, but in some way must have turned the swivel too quick, or forgotten some part of the combination, as in the morning, the repository of funds could not be opened. Mr Ross was sent for and worked a long time without avail. Then a man was telegraphed for from Boston, and all day Thursday he was at work, and the safe was still locked in the early part of the evening. The new man had to proceed to take the door to pieces. In the meantime the pay roll, funds for the different places, and other valuable papers have to wait. This shows the Eastern Express Company keep their property in a good safe place

Gen. Tillson's artesian well, at the head of his wharf in Rockland, is making good progress, under the superintendence of Capt. M. J. Achorn. The drill has reached a depth of about 47 feet. Part of the time the stratum to be bored has been hard quartz rock, in which very slow progress was made, but now the drill encounters softer stone and goes down faster. Only two seams have been passed in the 47 feet.

The Rockland Gazette says Mr. Maddocks, keeper of the lighthouse at Owl's Head, has furnished us with a statement of the number of vessels that have passed that station during the year ending Dec 31, 1878. The list as follows: Ships, 3, barks, 15; brigs, 77, schooners, 16,344, sloops, 686, steamers, 3,770—total, 20,904. The previous year the record was, ships, 11, barks, 23, brigs, 124; schooners, 16,-565; sloops, 607, steamers, 2,617; total, 19,947. This shows an increase of 957 in the last year, which is, however, wholly in the number of steamers passing the light—the number of all other kinds of craft being greater in 1877.

Last Monday morning, Charles Fred. Ingraham of West Camden, met with a severe accident near Blackington's Corner, on his way to Rockland. In passing from the road to the sidewalk, he slipped in such a manner as to turn his foot round, spraining his ankle very badly. In this condition he rode home, a distance of five miles, without having it cared for, by so doing, the ankle swelled, and it becoming very painful, it was with difficulty the boot was removed. He is now comfortable.

LIME ON GRASS SWARD

An English writer assumes to have made a discovery in top dressing green sward with lime, and its restorative effects, and describes the process somewhat in detail. Now if the writer had visited this country where English farmers imagine agricultural science to be in its infancy, he would have found out without going beyond the limits of the city of Philadelphia, that the application of lime to sward or sod is a common practice here, especially upon pasture lands. We have known sward to afford the very best pasture for fifty years without breaking up, and so maintained by the top-dressing of lime once in from six to ten years, say of from thirty to fifty bushels per acre. These pastures which mostly abound in clay moulds, after being grazed down are restored knee deep with the richest and most nourishing herbage in from four to five weeks. The truth is, nowhere has lime a more marked effect, and can be used with more profit than in the renovation of pastures.—Germantown Telegraph

SALTING AND SMOKING BACON.—There are many different ways of pickling and preserving meat, but the following will be found a good one. For every one hundred pounds of meat use eight pounds of salt, three ounces saltpetre, three ounces saleratus, one quart mollasses, and two pounds of sugar, and water sufficient to cover the meat. Put all together, scald and skim off whatever impurities rise to the surface. Pack the meat tight in a barrel and pour on the pickle when it is cold. For beef it should be put on hot. Leave the meat in the brine six or eight weeks, then take out and smoke with green hickory or maple wood, if either can be obtained. If the smokehouse is tight and cool, the meat may be left hanging in it all summer or until used, but if there is danger of insects getting at the meat, wrap each piece in good thick brown paper, and rub the outside with salt and lime of the consistency of thin paint.

THE REPUBLICAN POSITION

The circumstances attending the organization of the Legislature and the choice of a Governor have been so anomalous this year that it is not at all surprising that there should be a great deal of misconception [illegible] outside the State—and more or less within it—concerning the real attitude of parties and the significance of events that have transpired. It seems to us desirable that such misconceptions should be removed and that everybody should understand precisely the motives that controlled the designation of the next Governor and the position of the Republican party in relation to the successful candidate. The Boston [illegible] in an editorial which we quote elsewhere gives the most intelligent and [illegible] statement of the case that we have seen in any paper from without the State [illegible] that being forced to choose between a Greenbacker and a quasi hard money Democrat the Republican Senators, who fought the campaign on the hard money issue, consistently gave their votes for the man who at least professes to favor specie payments.

The vote of the Republican Senate last Friday was simply a choice of evils forced upon them and was in no sense an indorsement of Mr Garcelon further than that [illegible] the public in a less objectionable light in regard to the financial question than the representative candidate of the flat money campaign. Only this and nothing more. The vote of Republican Senators was based solely upon public considerations and they gave the preference to Mr Garcelon solely because he has been credited before the public with a sounder financial status than Mr Smith, and not because they are satisfied with the [illegible] soundness of his doctrines or [illegible] of his maintenance of hard money principles when put to the test. As a matter of fact Mr Garcelon's position and utterances during the canvass were only less objectionable in degree to the radical supporters of sound finance than the reckless vagaries of the Greenbackers, and he owes his election to the fact that ostensibly he stood in the campaign as an opponent of the Greenback party. Such statements as that of the N. Y. [illegible] that Mr Garcelon is the hardest kind of a hard money man by no means represent the views of the Republicans of Maine who have made him Governor only because he was less pronounced in financial heresy than Smith the Greenback candidate. Mr Garcelon has advocated in season and out of [illegible] the issue of a new volume of hundreds of millions of legal tender [illegible] in place of national bank bills and that proposition involves the very essence and triumph of Greenbackism. A few years ago Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio was universally regarded as an uncompromising hard money Democrat. He made a speech last summer which was as universally recognized as a surrender to the inflationists and for months he has been counted out of the list of hard money [illegible] of his party. The whole point and purport of that speech on which the public verdict was so promptly rendered was the advocacy of the issue of more [illegible] to take the place of bank notes which Mr Garcelon advocated throughout the state campaign. To hold therefore that Garcelon can be the hardest kind of a hard money man while standing on the same platform with Thurman, who has been given over to the soft money crowd, is a palpable absurdity.

The [illegible] have simply given Garcelon the benefit of his quasi hard money [illegible] and have rendered what they thought due to public impression and sentiment by choosing him rather than the acknowledged head of the Greenback movement. We fully approve their action, [illegible] we never will [illegible] we had in favor [illegible] would have voted all day on the same [illegible] if necessary had we been a member of the Senate but we want the public to fully understand that the alternative which [illegible] the choice of a minority Democratic [illegible] rather than the standard bearer [illegible] flat money party involved no Republican endorsement of the individual.

This position was fitly expressed in the designation of three Democratic Greenbackers or Greenback Democrats to inform Mr Garcelon of his election by the Senate. The Republican Senate practically said "It belongs to your combination, we claim no [illegible] interest in or responsibility for [illegible] we have simply performed a disagreeable duty in obedience to the Constitution of the State, and you can take your [illegible] and make the most of him."

The purely public spirit of the Republicans is further evidenced by the fact that they neither expect nor wish any favor from the man they have reluctantly elevated to a place to which the people refused to place him. And speaking for this paper, we can say that we have no faith that Mr. Garcelon's "hard money" views will withstand the first shock of pressure from the "unholy alliance" into which his party leaders have entered. We expect him to prove a partizan of the most subservient type and that he will trim and dicker to [illegible] soft money voters for his party, just as the fuglers may demand of him. For every inch that he may rise above this standard we will give him full credit, but we want it understood that the Republican party in the embarrassing position in which it has been placed, has followed the straight line of principle, even when compelled to put a small man in a high place, to elevate a renegade from its own ranks, to invest with Executive prerogatives a man from whom it has nothing to expect but partisan intrigue and intolerance.

One of the funniest scenes at Augusta last week was when Representative Pickard of this city, appeared at the door of the Senate to announce that the House was ready for a joint convention. He had reached the middle of his speech, when a Messenger from the House touched his elbow to make some suggestion. With a backward fling of his arm like the spiteful flirt of a cow's leg when she kicks over a milk-pail, Pickard yelled at the man "GIT AOUT!" and went on with his announcement amid the roars of laughter from the spectators.

The New York Herald says. "Air your rooms two or three times a day during the cold snap, it is generally after a period of tightly closed doors and windows that diphtheria and scarlet fever are most virulent."

GOVERNOR GARCELON.

It is doubtful if any man ever assumed the Gubernatorial chair under more peculiar circumstances than attend the induction of Alonzo Garcelon into the Executive office. Receiving but 28,218 votes in an aggregate of 126 169, he owes his elevation not to the suffrages of the people, but to a trafficking combination of professed hard-money Democrats and flat-money Greenbackers which ignored the 15,183 plurality given to Governor Connor by the people at the polls, and forced upon the Republican Senate the alternative of choosing between the recognized representative of the soft-money, communistic movement and a man labelled as a hard money Democrat, although his actual soundness on the financial question has never inspired much confidence. Mr Garcelon owes his election to a shameless trade and alliance between factions mutually professing to regard the doctrines of each other as destructive of the public welfare, but which have joined together confessedly and solely for the sake of the petty spoils of office. The unenviable attitude in which Mr. Garcelon is placed, is very strikingly illustrated by the comment upon his election in the new organ of the Democratic Greenback coalition at Augusta. That paper, the National Democrat, gives to the new Governor's financial record a variegated and striped aspect to make it harmonize with the double-ended combination of which he is to be the figure-head. It says of him.

In the early days of the Republicanism, Mr Garcelon acted with the party. But in 1867 and 1868, when the question of changing the contract and paying the 5 20 bonds in coin came up and the Republican Congress decided in favor of paying them in coin Mr Garcelon left that party and joined the Democracy. Since that time he has been a very prominent and influential member of his party, and has exerted a great influence in shaping its course. To day he is marked as a hard money Democrat and "firm in the faith."

The consistency of the above is in beautiful keeping with the whole business—The hybrid party organ says its Governor left the Republican party because he was opposed to hard-money doctrines, joined the Democracy of course because it favored soft money doctrines, has "exerted great influence" in shaping the course of the Democracy and to-day is marked as a hard money Democrat."

Another editorial from a different source suggests another phase of the "peculiarity" of Governor Garcelon's position. The Lewiston Journal remarks

Dr Garcelon, it is stated, has been preparing, in a general way to respond to a call for an inaugural, and doubtless will be ready on Tuesday to present the annual message. He was informed of his election by telegraph, early Friday afternoon. In view of the peculiar circumstances under which he takes the Executive Chair, considerable curiosity will be felt as to his treatment of questions of State policy as well as of matters in which he is supposed to differ from certain gentlemen whom the Legislature has given him as Councilors

The Journal undoubtedly refers to the number of Greenback Councillors selected to advise with this "hard money" Democratic Governor. But we think our friends of the Journal need not worry over any embarrassment to Mr Garcelon on that account, as some of the most obnoxious of the Greenbackers chosen to the Council are understood to owe their selection to Mr Garcelon's influence. One of the most blatant and ridiculous of the flat money ranters in the late campaign was one F M Fogg, of Auburn, an employe on Solon Chase's Chronicle, and the fellow was so irrepressible that he thrust himself forward to deliver a soft-money harangue in the hall of the House of Representatives last Tuesday evening, while the combination company were caucussing in the Senate Chamber. Fogg was chosen a member of the Executive Council, and it was the current talk in Augusta that among the strongest influences in his favor was an urgent letter from the "hard money" Garcelon recommending his selection.

Never before in the history of Maine has a State Administration ushered in such an atmosphere of trading, stultification, and insincerity. It will be interesting if not edifying, to note how Mr. Garcelon will succeed in his political role of "Mr Facing both ways."

HOW PENOBSCOT WAS SLAUGHTERED

The Reporter of the Bangor Commercial wrote from Augusta last week "The Bangor delegation is a great power and will prove itself so during the session" The Bangor aspirants for office will be inclined to think that the "power" was not very potently exercised in behalf of home candidates. The Greenbackers and Democrats had a delegation of no less than twenty members from Penobscot County, and yet with this "great power" of numbers and all the "claims" of Penobscot's vote, the various candidates from this County were slaughtered one after another in the most summary manner, and out of the whole scramble for office Penobscot's only trophy was Wingate Gibbs for Assistant Clerk. It was amusing to wide-awake spectators to observe how the Penobscot fellows bustled around in the idea that they were fixing things up nicely for their candidates, while the whole State had been quietly arranged by a select coterie consisting of W H McLellan, Ebed Pillsbury, the veteran Edmund Wilson, the genial S D Leavitt, the child-like and bland Charles P Brown and a few other choice spirits. First the McLellanites tried to force the nomination of young Hall as Secretary to fill Bangor's quota so as to throw out Varney and Hersey, for the Attorney-Generalship. That plan failing McLellan's friends went over to Gove in consideration of support against Varney and Hersey. At the same time McLellan's friends were securing the support of the Penobscot friends of Folsom for Adjutant-General on the understanding of a reciprocal support of Folsom while the McLellan men were all the time working for Leavitt and bound to nominate him. One after another, the Penobscot candidates were slaughtered by the ring, and the slate was carried out to a dot. It was interesting to watch the Bangor chaps when C. P Brown, arose and launched into a glowing eulogy of McLellan, as entitled to the place for his services in overthrowing the Republican party and defeating "that pigmy Eugene Hale" in Waldo. Mr. Varney, who was urged into the canvass, was cheated right and left, and received only eleven votes where his friends had felt warranted in counting on a large support, while Hersey, who held on for another ballot, is said to have been taken care of with a promise of appointment as Reporter of Decisions. Even Folsom, the special representative and personal friend of candidate Smith, was ignominously thrown overboard by the ring slate-makers, and the wily Wilson caused knowing ones to admire his "cheek" when he arose after a Democratic Speaker, Clerk, State Treasurer and Attorney General had been nominated, and declared that the Democrats had not been fairly treated and that if they were not given the Adjutant General they should "bust the machine."

The crest-fallen Penobscot crowd were the laughing stock of the assembled multitude at Augusta, and the lugubrious visages of the long line of scalped Penobscot candidates who marched to the cars after the scramble, were sorrowful to contemplate. The slaughter was bad enough, but the new Augusta organ adds ribaldry to injury by remarking with a fine sarcasm that "Old Penobscot is not to be outdone in generosity!" We should say not!

And now Marcellus can find nothing to raise his voice in gladness about, except the choice of Hon. J. B. Foster as Executive Councillor, a matter that was left to the delegations or else the ring slate makers would have gobbled that also. No one would be so hard hearted as to grudge Marcellus the satisfaction he can squeeze out of the success of his two friends, Messrs. Foster and Gibbs, or to grudge Mr. Foster the political vindication he has obtained in being chosen for a Council which embraces such eminent flat money statesmen as Fogg, of Solon Chase's Chronicle, Chase, of the New Era and Parker, of the North Star.

The future historian will smile, if a Republican, and if a Democrat or Greenbacker, will weep, as he records how

Penobscot's allies, eager hosts of men
Marched to the State House, and then—marched back again

THURMAN'S SPECIFICATIONS

When the Democratic members of the Teller Committee insisted upon demanding specifications from Senator Blaine, the Republican members required a similar call to be made upon Senator Thurman—Senator Blaine promptly responded by citing circumstances and witnesses in abundance—Democratic witnesses at that—but Thurman was tardy in supplying the basis for his charges of bull dozing in the North, and did not reply until New Years Day. His letter is very comical reading. The first part of it is an argument which would prove the absurdity of the demand made upon Senator Blaine to furnish evidence to a committee expressly created to seek and obtain evidence; but when he proceeds to give specifications as the basis of his amendment demanding investigation in the North, he ludicrously shows the weakness of his position and the contemptible attitude he assumed in trying to shield Southern villany by arraigning the North. He cites, first, an editorial from the Democratic Washington Post of Jan, 1; second a petition from New York city against the action of the Federal Supervisors, presented in the House by Fernando Wood, Dec 12, third a decision of Judge Friedman on naturalization, rendered after the above petition was presented, fourth a speech of Senator Wallace of Pennsylvania, delivered in the Senate Dec 17 and a letter of W. D. Kelley of a still later date complaining that the influence of Federal office-holders was used against him, not at the polls—but to prevent his nomination, fifth an editorial from a Democratic paper in Vermont, and sixth a campaign committee's circular soliciting voluntary contributions for campaign purposes.

The hugeness of the joke will be appreciated, and the smallness of the hole out of which Thurman is trying to crawl will be perceived, when it is remembered that Mr. Thurman's amendment alleging intimidation and fraud in the elections at the North and demanding their investigation, was presented by him in the Senate on the 11th day of December, and that every one of the newspaper editorials and other documents which he now cites as having formed the basis of his amendment, have made their appearance since his amendment was introduced! He practically confesses therefore, that when he framed and presented his indictment of the North he had not a shadow of basis for it that he can cite, and the Democratic editorials and other irrelevant stuff that he has gathered up since have hardly enough substance to cast a shadow. Mr. Thurman, in his zeal to play flunkey to the Solid South by libelling his own section, has made himself ridiculous

THE RETIRING EXECUTIVE COUNCIL. The Kennebec Journal has the following appreciative notice of the retiring members of the Executive Council:

No State official has more responsible and difficult duties to perform than a member of the Executive Council, before which body the financial matters of the various departments of the State Government must come for adjudication. Gov. Connor has been extremely fortunate in the make-up of his Council. The following gentlemen have served in that capacity: Silas C Hatch of Bangor, Enoch C. Farrington of Fryeburg, Charles E. Jose of Portland; Andrew Lacy of Wiscasset, Lemuel G. Downes of Calais; Russell B Shepherd of Skowhegan; Wm. F. Garcelon of Lewiston. The most of these gentlemen have had large experience in State and public affairs and have brought to the discharge of their varied duties a knowledge, judgment and good understanding that their friends in the Republican party and the people as well, may point to with just pride. To Mr. Hatch, of the Council, more than to any other man does the credit belong of securing the railroad tax. It is fair to say that Mr. Hatch, with Governor Dingley, helped to originate this new revenue to the treasury of the State. And in regard to the reimbursement measure, just decided in favor of the State—when Mr. Hatch was a member of the Legislature, he expressed an opinion that the claims of the towns had no foundation in justice or equity, and three distinguished members of the Supreme Bench have just decided the question in the same way. From these two sources alone the State will save this year about $75,000. The people should remember such men as Mr. Hatch and his associates who now retire from the Council; and let those who shout "retrenchment and reform" make note of that.

SPEAKER WADE OF MASSACHUSETTS. Hon. J. W. Porter writes us as follows: "Levi C. Wade, Esq., of Newton, was elected Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives on Wednesday last. Mr. Wade is not of 'blue blood,' nor a graduate of Harvard College, but a self-made man, a rising lawyer and every way worthy and fit for the position. His friends in this State will be much pleased with his deserved election. His wife, a most admirable and accomplished woman, is a daughter of the Hon. William Rogers of Bath, now a member of the Senate of Maine."

THE OUTCOME IN MAINE.

[From the Boston Journal]

Dr. Alonzo Garcelon, the Democratic candidate who received 28,000 votes in a total of 126,000, has been chosen by the Legislature for Governor of Maine for the ensuing year. This result was brought about by a bargain between the Greenbackers and Democrats in the House, where that combination has twenty majority, by which the names of the Greenback and the Democratic candidates for the office at the September election were sent to the Senate, which is Republican. In the Senate the Republicans have a majority often, but being forced to choose between a Greenbacker and a quasi hard money Democrat, the Republican Senators, who fought the campaign on the hard money issue, consistently gave their votes for the man who, at least, professes to favor specie payments. By the action of the coalition House, Gen. Connor, who received 15,000 more votes than the Greenback candidate, and more than double the vote of Dr. Garcelon, was ignored

This House majority which overturned the politics of Maine has the narrowest foundation that a party ever stood upon which has undertaken to do so much. A change of about a hundred votes in a dozen Representative districts last September would have reversed the majority, leaving out of account the probable fraud by which a bundle of fifty Republican tickets with the names of Democratic-Greenback candidates for Representatives were doubtless inserted in the counting of the votes in a Democratic ward in Portland in the place of that number of regular tickets thereby electing four of the Democratic candidates.

Our Augusta despatches have indicated the nature of the contest which has just ended there. The Democratic minority has controlled or rather captured the Greenback majority. Men from the Democratic party have been chosen to fill the places of State Treasurer, Attorney General and Adjutant General, Speaker and Clerk of the House, while Greenbackers coming from the Republican party have been accorded the offices of Secretary of State and Assistant Clerk of the House. The Executive Council selected by the coalition caucus is doubtless the weakest in many years. With the exception of two men of fair ability, it is made up chiefly of men who have been for some years disappointed office-seekers and third rate Democrats of the intense anti-war type. Our readers who may have chanced the past year to listen to a noisy young Greenbacker named Fogg, will be surprised to learn that he has been chosen as an adviser of the Governor.

On the whole, the Democratic managers have had their way. The Greenbackers have scolded and threatened, but finally have carried out the orders of their Democratic masters. The Greenbackers have but one morsel with which to console themselves. They compelled the Democratic leader in the House, elected against a Greenbacker as a hard money Democrat and for years a hard money advocate and member of the Democratic National Committee, to lead his party associates in going on record against a declaration that specie payments are desirable and now that they have been begun must be maintained. The Greenbacker may congratulate himself that this conversion of the representatives of the hard money Democracy of Maine to the flat money doctrine is genuine, but he should remember that a Democratic convert is very uncertain. It does not humiliate the Democrats who, in the Maine Convention in 1875, greeted with rounds of applause the declaration, "Specie resumption at the earliest possible day—every step forward, no step backward," to declare in 1879, when resumption has taken place, that it is a matter of no account, indeed a thing rather to be deplored—if they can get offices thereby. Indeed, observing people are fast coming to the conclusion that a Democratic platform honestly constructed would contain but one plank, namely "all things and anything to secure office," or as the somewhat remarkable ex Gov. William Allen of Ohio, put it, "Democratic principles can be adjusted to every circumstance and every emergency"

Thus far the coalition has been successful to outward appearance. Still those who are on the battle-field report that the number of disappointed and disconsolate is very large. Men who led in the Greenback movement—the pioneers—have been rudely pushed aside by those political camp followers who derided them as lunatics two years ago, and who rushed into the organization and assumed its control when they saw that spoils of office were probable. It is, however, a source of gratification that a large number of ex-Republican officials who became disaffected when they learned that they could not always be kept in office have departed from Augusta with empty hands and poorer to the extent of their hotel bills.

If any of our readers imagine any combination of the enemies of the Republican party can more wisely and prudently manage the affairs of a State, we ask them to carefully watch all that transpires under the Democratic-Greenback administration in Maine.

In the House Friday morning the coalition fuglers, were so distrustful of their own men, that although they had a margin of 21 votes, they had Representative Robinson, of Oldtown, brought in to vote, in spite of his feebleness in consequence of an attack of apoplexy which had prostrated him a few hours before. When the ballot was taken for Secretary of State, Reformer Brown, of this city, moved to suspend the ballot to have the sick man again brought in to vote, and this was about to be repeated on the ballot for Treasurer, when Representative Young, of Brunswick, fittingly rebuked the indecent exhibition of rapacity for office, by declaring as a Republican that rather than witness the cruelty of forcing that sick man to be dragged to and fro for his vote, he would voluntarily pair with him, and enable his friends to take him where he could receive proper attention.

The great question that occupied the whole attention of the Retrenchment and Reform combination at Augusta after the scramble for the offices was over, was the proposition to render State aid to the new fusion organ, of which Dickey, of Aroostook, declared to the House that "it could not live a week" unless the Legislature should subscribe for it. On this great matter of extracting aid from the State Treasury for starting a daily edition of E. F. Pillsbury's Standard, the reformers and retrenchers have held numerous solemn and secret conferences and when the recess was taken the all-important State economy of supporting a needless paper, had not been fully arranged.

The Tribune remarks that there is a general disposition manifested by a ribald press to treat Mr. Thurman's letter to the Teller Committee as a contribution to comic literature. It is proper to state that it was one of the most serious and painful efforts of his life.

FOREIGN NEWS.

GREAT BRITAIN

The Cornish Bank Closed

LONDON, Jan 4 A correspondent telegraphs from Truro, Cornwall, as follows There is great consternation here this morning in consequence of a notice posted on the door of the Cornish bank announcing it was closed Unfavorable reports have been in circulation for a few days as to its stability, but the general feeling was of confidence although there was a slight run on the bank It is hoped that the suspension will be only temporary, but nothing definite can be known for a few days The bank did a very large business in mining and other commercial enterprises

The Cornish bank belongs to Tweedie, Williams & Co and was established about 110 years ago The bank has branches at Falmouth Penryn and Pedruth Sir Frederick Williams member of Parliament from Truro, who died recently, held one-third of the concern and his widow is sole executor The bank had an authorized issue of £49 000

Terrible Distress to Result

LONDON, Jan 4 A despatch from Plymouth says the stoppage of the Cornish bank will cause terrible distress among the traders of West Cornwall The immediate cause of the suspension is a run on the bank during the last fortnight resulting from rumors that the late Sir Frederick Williams was largely indebted to the bank and that a large portion of the capital was locked up in mines and in advances on them, neither of which securities were immediately realizable The further stoppage of the Cornish mines is inevitable and the failure of many private firms must follow.

Nine Hours Per Day

There are indications of an intention on the part of employers in the West of Scotland to enforce a return to an aggregate of 54 hours as the weekly quota of labor One or two large establishments have already posted notices to that effect. The Ameer's Flight

LONDON, Jan. 4. The Viceroy of India telegraphed Dec. 31st, the details of the Ameer's withdrawal from Cabul. The Ameer held a durbar on Dec 10th, when it was resolved that after the fall of Ali Musjid and Peiwar, no further reliance could be placed on his troops, or resistance offered The Ameer therefore concluded to seek Russian protection and place his case before a European Congress, leaving Yakoob Khan, his son, in charge. Yakoob Khan was released the same day and an oath administered that he should do as the Ameer directed. The Ameer left Cabul, Dec. 13th. His authority had almost disappeared. A despatch from the Viceroy, Jan 3d, says the Cabulise chief has written to General Roberts offering his services. He says the Ameer has gone to St. Petersburg.

The Lobster-Can Question.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 4 The Chamber of Commerce held another meeting and again discussed the questions to be brought before the Dominion Board of Trade at Ottawa Mr Stayner, with reference to the lobster-can question, said that be did not feel satisfied with the present aspect of affairs He believed if the matter were pressed on the American Government by the Canadian Government, the duty might be taken off He had paid duty on a lot of goods in question, with the object of having the Canadian Government sue for the amount

Mr Jones said that Government had inquired and found that they could not sue the American Government In regard to the winter port of the question, the following resolution was passed

That this Chamber appeal to the Government to take such means as are necessary to carry into effect the long cherished hope of making Halifax the shipping winter port of the Dominion, and that delegates from this chamber be also requested to bring the subject before the Dominion Board of Trade and use all their energies when the question is discussed

FAMILY AFFLICTION The Portland Argus says "A rather singular instance of family affliction has recently occurred Mrs Polly Woodbury of Paris was last week stricken with paralysis, and still lies in a precarious condition. At the same time her son's wife's mother died, and the daughter was attending the funeral, when intelligence was received that her husband, who resides in Cambridge, Mass., had been kicked by a horse and dangerously injured. A sister of Mrs Woodbury's went up to attend on her, and the day after her arrival she received a paralytic shock and was brought home. A daughter who was also with her mother was taken with convulsions."

REFORMS AND REFORMERS Last evening Prof. Geo E Foster, of the University of New Brunswick, delivered an able, eloquent and interesting address upon the above topic, at the Pine Street M E church. A large audience was assembled, and all were highly pleased, interested and instructed by the remarks of the eloquent speaker. The speaker gave a brief history of the great reforms of the world, in India, Greece, Germany, Switzerland, England, America and Ireland, and referred eloquently to the work of reform commenced and carried out by Buddha and Luther in behalf of religious reforms, of Solon in behalf of the rights of man, of Tell and Washington in behalf of the liberty of the people, of Wilberforce, for the abolition of slavery in England and its colonies, and of Father Matthew in behalf of temperance. Speaking also of the work done by the Washingtonians of the country in behalf of moral suasion, he urged the great importance of that means of saving the fallen, and preventing the spread of intemperance and at the same time ably advocated prohibitary laws as a means of backing up the efforts of reformers and enabling those who would abstain from drink to be out of the reach of the temptation placed in their way by the open selling of liquor when the laws allowed its sale. In the opinion of the speaker, based upon his observation, experience and study, moral and legal suasion should go hand in hand. A collection was taken up at the close of the lecture, the proceeds of which were generously given by Mr Bolton to the ladies of the W. C. T U. Music was furnished by a choir consisting of Misses Hodsdon and Bolton and Messrs. Holden and Barnaby, with Mrs. Ayer at the organ

HOW THE DOCTOR'S DAUGHTER WON DAKIN'S BOY.

Dear me, how it rains, said Hetty Wallis. She had opened the door the least bit in the world to see if there was any prospect of its clearing up, but the rush of wind and rain that swept in at the crevice compelled her to close it again almost instantaneously.

It was a little brown house, on the edge of the lonely western forest—a brown house with sloping eaves and a bay window and a dooryard full of roses whose crimson clusters gleamed faintly in the late autumn twilight

Doctor Wallis lived here—Doctor Wallis who had come West with his two daughters scarcely six months ago, and was the only physician in a radius of thirty good miles round

Hetty stood by the fire, one foot on the fender, her dark dreamy eyes fixed on the red glow of the burning logs Sibyl the other sister lay luxuriously back in a cushioned easy chair, waiting for the lamps to be lighted before she went on with a bit of crimson wool work in her lap

Sibyl was a rosy cheeked, scarlet lipped beauty—one of those fair human flowers which like the lilies of Solomon are designed neither to toil nor to spin

Doctor Wallis was a poor man and kept no servants but no one ever expected Sibyl to do any of the rough and disagreeable work consequent upon house-keeping

Sibyl dusted the parlor, kept the vases full of flowers, washed the tea china and did up her own pretty laces and pocket handkerchiefs and Hetty the second daughter—a brown little elf with jetty hair growing low on her forehead, and a colorless skin—cheerfully took the prosaic ... as if it were her natural inheritance

I ... think of poor papa out in all this storm said Hetty mournfully

... mind such things, said Sibyl serenely And of course, it's just what ... must expect

Hark! said Hetty suddenly turning her head in a quick bird like fashion Some one is knocking at the back door.

Perhaps you had better go and see who ... asked Sibyl serenely

It was a man all wrapped up in oil skin ... nothing more than the tip of a very red nose was visible

Oh I say miss said the dripping visitor, where's the doctor?

He isn't in said Hetty

Where's Doctor Wallis reiterated the man

He ... went out said Hetty speaking loud ... under the impression that ... was deaf

... Dakin's boy said the man he's ... got it

Oh ... said Hetty Croup I suppose?

Don't know what it is said the messenger Ain't no doctor myself All I know is I ... bring back Dr Wallis, said ... with ... in his lumber wagon at the ...

... if he is out said Hetty

The man stood a moment, shifting from one foot to the other, evidently in a quandary

I ... if I know what to do, said ... Miss. I've just send ... Dakin's just as quick as ... Dakin's boy chokes to ... no fault of mine?

And away he rumbled the wagon into the ... twilight

It had hardly disappeared when a little ... served with a note for Hetty

It's from papa said Hetty hurriedly ... reading aloud the following message

Dear Girls—Old Eldwood is very bad I shall probably be detained all night ... keep the house as usual, and don't expect me until I come

Affectionately H W

Oh dear said Hetty blankly and what is to be come of Dakin's child?

I never saw such a girl as you are, Hetty ... lovely Sibyl with a pettish contraction of the brows You're always ... other people's troubles What is Dakin's child to us I'd like to know?

... only think of it Sibyl said Hetty clasping her hands a dear little baby suffocating to death all for want of the simplest ...

... said Sibyl settling back ... among her cushions

I ... not sure of that said Hetty ... I know the remedies papa uses in cases of croup and how to use them

Hetty ... the elder sister are you ...

... said Hetty No I'm only ordinarily human The child shan't die if I can help it

She went to her father's drug closet ... and took out several little vials ... said Hetty with a little nod ... Assafœtida have ... simple remedies but very effectual if ... in time

... Sibyl you're never ... nobody knows how far, in ...

... Hetty buttoning on a ... red hood and pulling the ...

... You don't even know where these ... live

... It's a big red brick house ... the woods by the church ... the other day

... said Hetty

... grew ...

... Hetty impatiently But don't fret Sib— ...

... the brave little girl walked into ... twilight with her pockets ... the waterproof cloak ... around her

... she left the friendly light ... and was lost in the ... the forest where ... met over her head and ... sounds went through the ... Hetty's valiant heart began

... would not admit to herself ... was in the least timid but resolutely ... thoughts upon Dakin's ... to death with croup, and ... footsteps as she did so

Darker and darker it grew—lonelier and ... Hetty pressed resolutely on, ... and ready to drop ... making her way through ... the wind she knock ... Squire Dakin's red brick ...

... woman opened ... to? said she eagerly ... but it's the doctor's ...

... said the woman despairingly what good can you do, and ...

... said Hetty let me come in ... I understand my father's ... have some medicine

... the woman stood back motioning ... the stairway and Hetty ran up and ... the sick room with a confidence ... of her womanly courage and kindness

It was no cradled babe or plump ... year-old who lay there Dakin's boy was ... and twenty at the very least, pale and handsome with closed eyes and a face ... of mortal pain as it lay on its pillow

... the croup then? said she, ... of the little bottles in her ...

... said one of the attendants; ... fatal case I'm thinking

... Hetty all her bravery oozing ... Bob Acres courage, at her fingers ... sat down behind the door, and ... cry

The sick man opened his eyes—large and soft and dark they were with long lashes and asked faintly

Who is that?

Hetty rose and came forward

It's me the doctor's daughter, said she. I thought it was a little boy with the croup and—

Don't cry said he gently, it will soon be over

And he closed his eyes again, while poor Hetty cried harder than ever An incipient case of croup she thought she could manage but quinsy was entirely beyond the range of her capacities She had never been in a death chamber before, and the hour and solemnity of the scene impressed her with a sense of vague terror.

Just then a brisk heavy footstep sprang up the stairs, two at a time. There was a stir and commotion in the room.

Oh thank heavens! cried Hetty, it's papa

Doctor Wallis it was. Released earlier than he expected from the other sick bed, he had returned home and learned from his elder daughter Hetty's errand—and here he was, flushed and breathless from the haste he had made.

An hour later he came down to where Hetty sat on the lowest stair, pale and anxious

Papa, said she, how is he?

Better, my dear. Doing well. But it was an even chance between death and life for one while. Come, dear, I'm going home now. Dobbin is at the door.

Hetty climbed silently into the chaise and nestled down by her father's side.

Papa, said she, pleasantly, was I very foolish to come here?

No my dear, you are very kind hearted. But you see there is some difference between a simple case of croup and malignant quinsy

Dakin's boy recovered with marvellous celerity, and the first place he visited on his convalescence was Dr. Wallis' house, to thank the doctor's black eyed daughter for coming to see him on that stormy night

I wish I was a little chap with the croup, said he laughing, to put myself under your professional care

What nonsense! said Hetty, turning very red

But indeed, I shall never forget the pitying look in your kind eyes, said Hector Dakin, gently It seemed somehow to draw me back to life.

And by the time that Dakin's boy was quite recovered, he had gotten into the way of spending his time at Dr Wallis' that seemed decidedly chronic, and no one was very much surprised when he became engaged to the doctor's daughter.

It's very strange, though, said Sibyl, fretfully that the only eligible and decent looking man within ten miles should fall in love with our brown little Hetty

I don't think it strange at all, said Dr Wallis, dryly

Events are not determined by the wheel of fortune, which is blind, but by the wheels of Providence, which are full of eyes —[Matthew Henry

"Why didn't he go to church?" asked a youthful Kentuckian, when informed that God made the world in six days and rested the seventh

Duty is a power which rises with us in the morning and goes to rest with us at night It is co-extensive with the action of our intelligence. It is the shadow which cleaves to us, go where we will, and which only leaves us when we leave the light of life.

At a Dubuque wedding the other day, among the wedding presents ostentatiously displayed was a $1000 bill, a present from the doting father to his darling daughter. After the guests had departed the old man coolly rolled up the bill and put it in his vest pocket and that was the end of it

The country editor who takes all advertising out in trade will be gratified to know that a new pill just patented will keep a man alive a whole week without eating All he wants now to make him happy is a liver syrup that will make one suit of clothes last seventy-five years

The parents of an eight year-old Easthampton boy left him at home on Tuesday, to visit the death-bed of a relative and on their return in the evening couldn't find the boy Men with torchlights followed the country roads for four miles out, and the church-bells were rung and three hundred men with torchlights and lanterns filled the street The boy was found looking out of the front-chamber window ; He wanted to see torch-lights "

Dr Barton of Tivoli has a habit of talking to himself when riding along the road On a certain occasion, while indulging in this eccentric habit, he was met by a friend and thus accosted · "Hello, Doctor! What the deuce are you talking to yourself for? The Doctor pulled up his horse and replied For the very reason, sir, that it pleases me to talk to a gentleman who is capable of minding his own business—get up, Paul!

'What, the young man asked the young woman who was waiting for him to ask for his hat, "what do I put you in mind of?" A French clock " she said softly And pretty soon he arose and went his way The next morning he called upon an eminent horologist and asked him what was the distinguishing trait of a French clock The horologist said, Why, it never goes " And the young man was sorely cast down, and he grieved and told no man of his hurt

Among other curiosities on exhibition at the American department of the Paris Exposition was a spring chicken from an American boarding house The chicken was taken to the guillotine one morning but when the heavy knife fell on its neck the fowl gave a frightened squawk and after one or two tremendous pulls jerked its head away from under the knife and made its way back to its coop in the Exposition The knife was sent to the foundry for repairs

SCRIBNERS MONTHLY,

CONDUCTED BY J. G. HOLLAND.

The Handsomest Illustrated Magazine in the World.

The American edition of this periodical is now MORE THAN 70,000 MONTHLY, And it has a larger circulation in England than any other American magazine Every number contains about one hundred and fifty pages, and from fifty to seventy five original wood cut illustrations

Announcements for 1878--9.

Among the attractions for the coming year are the following

"HAWORTH'S," a serial novel, by Mrs Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's" The scene of Mrs Burnett's new novel is laid in Lancashire, the hero is a young Inventor of American birth "Haworth's" is the longest story Mrs Burnett has yet written It will run through twelve numbers of the Monthly, beginning with November, 1878, and will be profusely illustrated

FALCONBERG, a serial novel, by H H. Boyesen, author of "Gunnar," "The Man who Lost His Name," &c. In this romance, the author graphically describes the peculiarities of Norse immigrant life in a Western Settlement

A STORY OF NEW ORLEANS, by George W Cable, to be begun on the conclusion of "Falconberg" This story will exhibit the state of society in Creole Louisiana about the years 1803-4-5, the time of the Cession, and a period bearing a remarkable likeness to the present Reconstruction period

PORTRAITS OF AMERICAN POETS This series (begun in August with the portrait of Bryant) will be continued that of Longfellow appearing in November These portraits are drawn from life by Wyatt Eaton and engraved by T Cole They will be printed separately on tinted paper as frontispieces of four different numbers Illustrated sketches of the lives of the poets will accompany these portraits

STUDIES IN THE SIERRAS—A series of papers (mostly illustrated) by John Muir the California naturalist. The most graphic and picturesque and at the same time, exact and trustworthy studies of "The California Alps" that have yet been made The series will sketch the California Passes Lakes, Wind Storms and Forests

A NEW VIEW OF BRAZIL Mr Herbert H Smith of Cornell University a companion of the late Prof Hartt is now in Brazil with Mr J Wells Champney (the artist who accompanied Mr Edward King in his tour through "The Great South"), preparing for SCRIBNER a series of papers on the present condition,—the cities rivers and resources of the great empire of South America

THE "JOHNNY REB PAPERS, by an "ex Confederate" soldier will be among the raciest contributions to Scribner during the coming year They are written and illustrated by Mr Allen C Redwood, of Baltimore. The first of the series, Johnny Reb at Play, appears in the November number

THE LEADING EUROPEAN UNIVERSITIES We are now having prepared for SCRIBNER articles on the leading Universities of Europe They will be written by an American College Professor, Mr H H Boyesen, of Cornell (author of Falconberg etc,) and will include sketches of the leading men in each of the most important Universities of Great Britain and the Continent

Among the additional series of papers to appear may be mentioned those on HOW SHALL WE SPELL (two papers by Prof Lounsbury) THE NEW SOUTH LAWN PLANTING FOR SMALL PLACES (by Samuel Parsons of Flushing) CANADA OF TO DAY, AMERICAN ART AND ARTISTS AMERICAN ARCHÆOLOGY MODERN INVENTORS, also, Papers of Travel History, Physical Science, Studies in Literature Political and Social Science Stories Poems, Topics of the Time, by Dr J G Holland record of New Inventions and Mechanical Improvements Papers on Education Decoration, etc, Book Reviews, fresh bits of Wit and Humor etc, etc, etc

ST. NICHOLAS,

Scribner's Illustrated Magazine FOR GIRLS AND BOYS.

AN IDEAL CHILDREN'S MAGAZINE.

Messrs SCRIBNER & Co, in 1873 began the publication of ST NICHOLAS, an Illustrated Magazine for Girls and Boys with Mrs Mary Mapes Dodge as editor Five years have passed since the first number was issued and the magazine has won the highest position It has a monthly circulation of OVER 50,000 COPIES.

It is published simultaneously in London and New York and the transatlantic recognition is almost as general and hearty as the American Although the progress of the magazine has been a steady climb, it has not yet reached its editor's ideal of highest excellence, her idea is continually outrunning it, and the magazine as swiftly follows after To-day ST NICHOLAS stands

Alone in the World of Books:

The New York Tribune has said of it "ST NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for its service wider resources in art and letters than any of its predecessors or contemporaries The London Literary World says "There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice production of Scribner's press "

Good Things for 1878--9.

The arrangements for literary and art contributions for the new volume—the sixth—are complete, drawing from already favorite sources as well as from promising new ones Mr Frank R Stockton's new serial story for boys

"A JOLLY FELLOWSHIP,"

Will run through the twelve monthly parts,—beginning with the number for November, 1878 the first of the volume—and will be illustrated by James E Kelly The story is one of travel and adventure in Florida and the Bahamas For the girls, a continued tale

"Half a Dozen Housekeepers,"

By Katharine D Smith, with illustrations by Frederick Dielman begins in the same number and a fresh serial by Susan Coolidge entitled "Eye bright," with plenty of pictures, will be commenced early in the volume There will also be a continued fairy tale called

"Rumpty Dudget's Tower,"

Written by Julian Hawthorne and illustrated by Alfred Fredericks About the other features of St. Nicholas, the editor preserves a good humored silence content perhaps, to let her five volumes already issued, prophesy concerning the sixth in respect to short stories pictures poems humor instructive sketches and the three departments, "Jack in the Pulpit, the "Very Little Folks" department, and the "Letter box" and Riddle box"
